The individual layers (1a, 1b, 1c...1n) each consist of an absorbent sheet (2a, 2b, 2c...2n) and a fluid-impermeable sheet (3a, 3b, 3c...3n) which are detachably connected together. After separating off one individual layer (1a) the absorbent sheet (2b) of the next layer (1b) is exposed so that a fresh unused sponge surface is available.

The side faces are pref. covered with fluid-impermeable side sheets (7) while the top of the sponge can be provided with a type of handle. The fluid-impermeable sheets ensure that no liquid penetrates to the next layer of the sponge until the first layer has been removed. (10pp Dwg. No. 1/3)
